Mentoring -- Don't use the 'Nedermeyer' approach

By Lt. Col. Mick Guthals
28th Bomb Squadron commander

As I prepared to write this article the other day, I started thinking about my first recollection of a mentoring session. Needless to say, back then we didn't call them "mentoring sessions," and it certainly isn't how I would choose to perform one today, but it did occur.

Picture a sunny spring day. Neighborhood kids playing ball out in the yard.

Suddenly one of us gets the brilliant idea that instead of throwing the ball in front of the houses, we should throw it over the houses.

Well one thing leads to another, and we move from balls to rocks and then catastrophe happens -- I skillfully launch one right through the bedroom window of my next-door neighbor's house. The mentoring session that ensued remained with me over all of these years.

It was not one of those calm "father and son" type conversations. It was more along the lines of Nedermeyer's "pledge pin" conversation with Flounder in the movie "Animal House."

My neighbor's dad was in my face, which was followed by lots of yelling and saliva flying everywhere.

From the very second of impact, I felt bad about breaking the window, but the verbal abuse and shower just made me mad and isolated.

It was not long before my own dad came out of our house to see what all the commotion was.

He immediately walked up, asked what the problem was and began to absorb all the rage gushing from our neighbor.

It seemed like forever before he turned to me and calmly said to go inside so that he could talk a bit with my friend's dad.

My fate was certain -- I was doomed. It seemed like a decade passed before the door opened and my dad walked in. Shaking his head as he passed, he motioned me to follow him into the living room where my anticipated death would occur.

There was no doubt that what I did was serious and my dad's steady tone never relayed any different. However, his words revealed a message of direction, compassion and solution.

I survived the engagement with the realization that I needed to think before I act, and that I would be working the rest of my life to pay for the window.

Over time lots of things change, but one thing is certain; while this occurrence was not the first time I was mentored, it certainly was my longest lasting memory. In that short, 15-minute period, I had seen two styles of mentoring that would remain with me for life.

This story gives a little more insight into my past than I had originally intended, but I wanted to use it to show how different styles have different effects.

There are times when each of us want to stand up on a table and shout at someone over something they might have done or not done, but as in my story, most of the time this approach leaves the individual being mentored with an "us versus them" impression.

Mentoring isn't a new word for scolding, yelling or punishment.

Mentoring is a tool for teaching, changing and educating.

As supervisors, we are either trying to reinforce a behavior in order to have it continue or enlighten as to why a behavior is unacceptable and needs change.

Sessions between supervisor and subordinate should focus on the desired outcome, instead of the pain that the supervisor is currently experiencing. Even though the pain may be a result of a subordinate, releasing it back on the individual is unlikely to convince him or her to change and may further distance the individual from the desired outcome or even make it a personal challenge not to conform.

Remember that the individual in the wrong likely feels bad about not meeting the standard, and if not, then we mentors in the individual's life have not done our job of informing the individual and enforcing the actual standard.

A calm approach provides a solid backdrop on which to build compassionate direction and solution. The calm approach also serves as a great springboard for leaping into mentoring sessions related to positive actions and results.

This is where all mentoring sessions should conclude. By that I don't mean that those specific sessions are conducted for the purpose of correcting deficiencies, but once those deficiencies are corrected, celebrate the victory.

It is only through multiple victories at the skirmish level that we can achieve victory at the campaign level. This impact isn't limited to the individuals. It will catch on with the rest of the unit. Word will spread among the troops that you are mentoring, motivating and leading the troops to victory.

After all, we're not in this to come in second.

Y.O.U. and leadership -- keys to success

By Maj. Keith Compton
7th Aircraft Maintenance Squadron

"You" is a personal pronoun that has many connotations. It can be used by someone to grab your attention as in, "Hey you!" It can also be used to identify a specific person to do a task such as, "You, go get the ball."

But, today I'm using it as an acronym for You, Others and Unique (Y.O.U.)

What does this have to do with leadership? It is the beginning and the end.

YOU signifies what an individual brings to the fight.

The collection of lessons and experiences, values and character a person has. People's experiences tend to reinforce or enable them to throw out unsuccessful decisions. That is why you can't be afraid to learn. Knowledge is a treasure you can always carry easily.

Surveys have proven that leaders with the values of trust, loyalty, integrity and honesty have the best effect on organizations and those around them. More importantly, a person's character -- comprised of their charisma, attitude, composure and courage either inspires or deflates subordinates' morale.

Would you rather follow Woody Allen or John Wayne? Another facet that is important is how well you follow the rules. Retired Gen. Wilbur Creech, former Tactical Air Command commander, stated, "Leaders lead by example and set the tone. Above all, they don't countenance selective enforcement of standards."

Don't choose which rules to break -- follow them all. The reason we must follow the rules as a leader is because of the tremendous impact you have on others.

Leaders are responsible to build credibility with others. By having that solid "YOU," it is easier to take care of your people and lead them to excellence.

A main point to remember is that other people need to feel appreciated. Warren Bennis stated, "Leaders are people who do the right thing."

The number-one thing we must do right is take care of others. Your success and the success of your organization depends on all the "others" feeling they are contributing members of the team.

In addition, they have to believe their leader has their interest at heart. You can get this done by having your people get to know you. Be visible and set the proper example. You can't maintain good order and discipline if you don't have it.

Each of us brings a unique approach to leadership. This is because we all bring different YOUS to the game. It is therefore necessary that you don't undermine your worth by constantly comparing yourself with others. It is because we are different that each of us is special and unique.

This difference brings diversity and different problem-solving capabilities. We have to welcome and encourage all members regardless of their background. It is your responsibility to create an environment where each person feels at ease.

You, Others and Unique are the keys to your leadership success.

The Institute of Management Accountants named Mary Anne Ray as the Management Accountant of the Year in 1992. # Airmen receive Article 15 punishments

By Staff Sgt.
Narda Martinez
Dyess Legal Office

The following Dyess Airmen received non-judicial punishment under Article 15 of the Uniform Code of Military Justice.

Some or all of these members were subsequently administratively discharged.

Names of Article 15 violators are not released.

In each Article 15, the member’s commander considered the offense and the punishment based on individual circumstances.

These circumstances included the nature of the offense, the record of the service member, the need for good order and discipline and the effect of non-judicial punishment on the service member.

According to officials from the Dyess Legal Office, individuals with prior misconduct usually receive more severe punishment than first-time offenders.

Therefore, punishment for similar offenses may vary based on other factors.

When punishment is suspended, it does not take effect unless other misconduct occurs, generally within the six months following the Article 15.

To help create a safe summer environment, safety officials are asking people to follow a three-step operational risk management process.

- Assess the environment for risk.
- Consider options to limit risk.
- Take the appropriate actions.

“This is only the beginning to what we believe will be the most proactive 101 Critical Days campaign in the history of Dyess,” Mr. Wells said. “Remember to keep the focus on Operational Risk Management on-duty as well as Personal Risk Management off-duty as methods to eliminate mishaps.

Our goal during this period is to safely accomplish our mission, while getting everyone back alive and well.”

CMSAF sends Memorial Day message

WASHINGTON -- The following is a Memorial Day message from Chief Master Sgt. of the Air Force Gerald R. Murray:

“In our nation’s capital, we memorialize American patriots who have fought and died for our country throughout history -- the Korean War Memorial, the Vietnam Wall, Arlington National Cemetery, and the newest addition, the National World War II Memorial, which will be dedicated on our National Mall on May 29.

“In small towns and big cities around our nation this Memorial Day, Americans will gather around flagpoles and in cemeteries to remember the bravery of their neighbors, friends, and family members who have laid down their lives so that we may continue to fly the flag of freedom.

“Our generation of Soldiers, Sailors, Marines, Coast Guardsmen, and Airmen shares a bond with warriors of generations past. We, like them, understand in a personal way the unfortunate truth that there are times when blood must be spilled in order for peace to be secured.”

“This Memorial Day, as America remembers the courage and commitment of heroes who died in service to our nation, we owe it to each of them to continue the fight for which they gave their lives, thus ensuring that America remains the Land of the Free and Home of the Brave.” (Air Force Print News)

Air Force approves wear of GWOT Expeditionary Medal

AIR FORCE PERSONNEL CENTER - The Air Force has authorized wear of the Global War on Terrorism Expeditionary medal approved by President Bush last year.

The Department of Defense campaign medal applies to active-duty, Reserve and Guard personnel deployed abroad on or after Sept.11, 2001, for Operation Enduring Freedom or Operation Iraqi Freedom.

"The criterion is pretty clear, so members who believe they are eligible can begin wearing it," said Tech. Sgt. Jeff Simmons, superintendent of the Recognition Programs Branch here.

To qualify, an individual must have been assigned or attached to a unit in OEF/OIF and served 30 consecutive days or 60 non-consecutive days in one of the following specific geographic areas: Afghanistan, Bahrain, Bulgaria (Bourgas), Crete, Cyprus, Diego Garcia, Djibouti, Egypt, Eritrea, Ethiopia, Iran, Iraq, Israel, Jordan, Kazakhstan, Kenya, Kuwait, Kyrgyzstan, Lebanon, Oman, Pakistan, Philippines, Qatar, Romania (Constanta), Saudi Arabia, Somalia, Syria, Tajikistan, Turkey (east of 35 degrees east latitude), Turkmenistan, United Arab Emirates, Uzbekistan, Yemen, that portion of the Arabian Sea north of 10 degrees north latitude and west of 68 degrees longitude, Bab el Mandeb, Gulf of Aden, Gulf of Aqaba, Gulf of Oman, Gulf of Suez, that portion of the Mediterranean Sea east of 28 degrees east longitude, Persian Gulf, Red Sea, Strait of Hormuz, and the Suez Canal.

The medal will only be awarded once, regardless of how many times an individual returns to serve in OEF or OIF. There are no service stars, or other devices authorized.

However, battle stars may be authorized for personnel who engaged in actual combat. The chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff is the approving authority for battle stars.

The medal follows the Kosovo Campaign medal in precedence and can be viewed at <http://www.defenselink.mil/news/Mar2003/200303134a.jpg>.

The medal will be issued by local Military Personnel Flights when it becomes available and will also be available through AAFES later this year.

Dyess honors local community with 2004 Big Country Appreciation Day

Despite long lines and thorough security, thousands of people flocked to the Dyess flightline Saturday to take part in Dyess’ 2004 Big Country Appreciation Day airshow featuring one of the Air Force’s premiere aerial demonstration teams -- Tora! Tora! Tora!

“I had heard about the Tora! Tora! Tora! performance before and it was great to finally see them in action,” said Airman Taward Anwar, 7th Logistics Readiness Squadron. “The acrobatic maneuvers of the planes and the explosions were spectacular.”

A Dyess C-130 executes a cargo airdrop during Dyess’ 2004 Big Country Appreciation Day airshow Saturday.

This year’s air show highlighted more than 20 different types of aircraft, both on and off the ground.

On the ground, Dyess visitors were able to get an up-close look at many static aircraft, including a variety of fighter, bomber and cargo aircraft such as the KC-135, C-5, C-17 and the F-15. Also making an appearance was the U.S. Air Force NASCAR and the “Flash-Fire” jet truck. Air show visitors were also able to see a security forces working dogs demonstration, military heritage display, military recruiters from all services, the Smokin’ Guns Car Show as well as a variety of Tae Kwon Do martial arts demonstrations.

In the blue Texas skies, Dyess visitors were able to experience many vintage and modern aircraft from the B-25, B-52 to the stealthy F-117, B-1 and F-16.

The momentum of the aerial displays culminated with two visual spectacles of the military’s past and its present -- Tora! Tora! Tora! and Viper East.

“Tora! Tora! Tora!” is the Commemorative Air Force’s recreation of the Japanese attack on Pearl Harbor that signaled the beginning of the America’s involvement in World War II. Designed as a living history lesson, “Tora! Tora! Tora!” is intended as a memorial to all the soldiers on both sides who gave their lives for their countries.

The Viper East F-16 Demonstration Team is one of six fighter demonstration teams sponsored by Air Combat Command. The Viper East F-16 Demonstration Team is assigned to the 20th Fighter Wing, at Shaw Air Force Base, S.C.

Whether enjoying the historic heritage flights or the blistering speed of the “Flash-Fire” jet truck, Dyess’ honored guests agreed, there was something for everyone to enjoy.

“I had a great time at my first airshow and was impressed by the many air performances,” said Sarah Wilkens, a local student. “It was definitely worth coming out to and an event that the whole family can enjoy.”

A Japanese Zero aircraft goes on a “bombing run” during the Tora! Tora! demonstration Saturday. The Tora! Tora! Tora! event is a historical reenacting of the bombing of Pearl Harbor.

7th AMXS bags win over 317th

By Airman 1st Class Kiley Olds
Dyess Public Affairs

The 7th Aircraft Maintenance Squadron Team #3 edged out the 317th Aircraft Maintenance Squadron, 11-9, during intramural softball action Monday.

“We really wanted to win and we stepped up to the plate,” said Jason Burt, 7th AMXS left center fielder. “We were missing a lot of our good players, so it shows the depth of our team that we were still able to come through in a clutch.”

The 7th AMXS jumped out to an early four-run lead in the bottom of the first inning to get on the board.

But the 317th AMXS fired back with three runs while holding the 7th AMXS scoreless in the second inning.

The 7th AMXS maintainers stepped up their game, managing to cling to a one-run lead in the third and stretch the lead throughout the next four innings.

Facing a 9-6 deficit going into the sixth and last inning of the game, the 317th AMXS rallied back with three more runs to tie the game.

Unfortunately a tie wasn’t enough, as the 7th AMXS got three more players across the plate, finishing the game and handing the 317th maintainers their first loss.

“The 317th (AMXS) is a really good team, and is probably one of the harder teams in our division,” Burt said. “We had no doubt about winning, but we were challenged. The 317th (AMXS) played hard and wanted the win as bad as we did.”

The 7th AMXS advances to 3-0 in American League play, while the 317th AMXS falls to 2-1.

Air Force wins women’s soccer championship

SAN ANTONIO -- The Air Force team won the 2004 Armed Forces Women’s Soccer Championship in a double round-robin championship at Fort Eustis, Va., May 8-15.

The first game of the tournament saw the Army team defeat the Navy team, 3-1. The goal by the Navy team later proved decisive in determining the tournament championship. The Air Force played the Navy next, with Heidi Commins scoring the first goal for the Air Force 35 minutes into the game.

Five minutes later, Beth Welliver scored the second Air Force goal.

Lauri Hrovatin scored with one minute remaining in the half, and Rosemary Costello made the final score 4-0 with the game’s final goal at the 54-minute mark.

The Air Force fell behind the Army in the second game when the Army scored 74 minutes into the game. The lead was short-lived, as Lindsay Keough knotted the score with three minutes left in the game. The final score ended 1-1.

The Army beat the Navy team, 6-0, to open the second round of play. The Air Force then played the Navy. Commins scored the first two goals of the game at the 26-minute and 41-minute marks. The Air Force’s Kaylynn Williams scored the final three goals of the game, all in the second half, making the final score 5-0.

The Air Force’s Stephanie Jardine opened the scoring in the championship’s final game at the 43-minute mark. Army tied the score 21 minutes later. Williams scored her final goal of the tournament at 66 minutes, with Army answering back almost immediately. Both games against the Army ended in ties. The Air Force won the tournament based on the goals for and goals against.

Costello, Commins, Jardine, Welliver and Keough were all named to the All-Tournament Team. Also named to this team were rover Jayne Baker and keeper Kristy Kuhlman.

Based on availability, Air Force players selected for the combined Armed Forces Women’s Soccer Team are: Kohlman, Welliver, Keough, Holly Allen, Kim Rodgers and Tally Koszinski. They will advance to play in the international military soccer championship that began Thursday and continues through June 6 at Ft. Eustis. (Air Force Print News)
